

Austrians train AFBiH in rescue techniques

Commander EUFOR

Major General Johann Luif

Readers,

Bearing in mind the serious challenges that Bosnia and Herzegovina was faced with last year, 2015 began as a year of better opportunities, which nonetheless require both decisive commitment and resources.

The EU perspective became more tangible with the 'EU new approach for BiH' launched in December 2014. This led to several concrete political steps throughout the past six months

Notably, in the frame of this process the Stabilization and Association Agreement was brought fully into force on the 1st of June and anchored the country to the EU accession path, while BiH began work to outline an Agenda for reform, which shall respond, among other things, to the protesters' grievances of February 2014. While political progress takes shape, the political and security situation is still affected by potential destabilisers.

Political exploitation of the attack on the police station in Zvornik or the recent resolution of the RS National Assembly to call a possible referendum on State level judicial institutions and the authority of the High Representative are clear signs of hampered political progress. These developments remind us of the importance to tackle such issues on a day by day basis. The emerging Reform Agenda and the Structured Dialogue on Justice constitute the most appropriate forums for this. In that sense, not only ensuring a safe and secure environment but also moving the country forward in political, social, and economic terms remain essential tasks for the EU in BiH.

Supported by EUFOR capacity building and training, the Armed Forces of Bosnia and Herzegovina have shown both the willingness and determination to respond to challenges. One only has to remember their tireless contribution during the flooding of last year to see the human and professional qualities their men and women demonstrated. However, the professionalization and modernization process of AFBiH remains constrained by budgetary issues, as these demanding activities have underlined the requirement for more equipment, more funding and more investment. Quite simply for AFBiH to reach its potential, it needs to be given the tools to accomplish its tasks.

Giving AFBiH the funding to better equip itself would not only improve its current capabilities, but also allow EUFOR to diversify the areas of training and mentoring. We have the expertise of 22 nations at our disposal and could provide additional training in a number of new areas if AFBiH equipped itself accordingly.

Bosnia and Herzegovina should be proud of the progress made by AFBiH in the past decade. While AFBiH is a comparatively young force, the resources needed for its development should be recognized in order to further upgrade itself to international standards.

COM EUFOR impressed by Dynamic Response

On the 12th of June COM EUFOR, Major General Johann Luif, alongside COM NATO, attended a briefing and demonstration during Exercise Dynamic Response. EUFOR provided 18 personnel to assist and advise during the exercise, which simulated Disaster Relief.

Building on experience

Exercise Dynamic Response is designed around the theme of 'Helping civilian structures in the event of flooding', and the scenario is closely based on the devastating flooding experienced last year. Designed and executed by the 6th Brigade Armed Forces of Bosnia and Herzegovina (AFBiH), it ran from the 8th until the 15th of June.

Civil and Military Cooperation

The first part of the exercise enabled the command teams to practice their response to a humanitarian disaster. For the first time, this exercise was attended not only by military forces but by members of the Civil Defense of the Republic of Srpska and Federal Civil Protection Administration of the Federation of Bosnia and Herzegovina.

In an interview at the event Major General Mirko Tepšić, AFBiH Deputy Chief of Joint Staff spoke of this combined approach;

'This was a good way to improve our cooperation and coordination to execute tasks we had given ourselves after the lessons learnt in the floods last year, and this is the way cooperation with civilian organizations can be improved'

Impressive Demonstrations

Major General Luif began the visit by meeting Major General Mirko Tepšić, and Brigadier General Radovan Ilic, 6th Brigade Commander. He received a briefing on the planning and execution of the exercise, before observing a live demonstration of Flood Rescue techniques. These involved not only AFBiH soldiers, but members of local Mountaineering and Rafting clubs. The visit concluded with an exhibition of the AFBiH Combat Simulation Centre, a facility used extensively during the planning of Exercise Dynamic Response.

Observing and advising

For this exercise EUFOR provided 18 staff officers in Embedded Advisory Teams, subject matter experts in areas ranging from Air Operations to Logistics. These EUFOR personnel passed on their knowledge and experience to the AFBiH personnel involved during the exercise, supporting them as they progress in their ability to manage incidents like the simulated flood.

Watching the demonstrations Major General Luif commented, ‘What we saw today was very impressive. It is very important to have such exercises to be prepared for real missions. I am very proud as Commander of EUFOR that we were closely connected with this exercise, to give them the advice to develop this very challenging situation’

COM EUFOR welcomes new NATO COM Brigadier General Giselle Wilz

The platoon conducted a number of flights, practicing their facility to rapidly load equipment and transport themselves with the helicopter.

Essential training

The capacity to move swiftly around Bosnia and Herzegovina is essential to EUFOR’s capacity to assist local authorities if required. Training like this enables the MNBN not only to sharpen their skills but also to gain knowledge of their surroundings and the time required to reach a location.

Ideal environment for practice

Austrian Warrant Officer Michael Zaller, Deputy Platoon leader said, ‘This training is very important as it should be a standard procedure for every soldier. The assets we have within Camp Butmir mean we have great opportunities to exercise this capability regularly’

Safe and secure environment

Alongside EUFOR’s central task, Capacity Building & Training of the AFBiH, EUFOR retains the ability to contribute to the Bosnia and Herzegovina authority’s deterrence capabilities if required.

Austrians train AFBiH in rescue techniques

On the 16th of June a mountain rescue techniques course run by a EUFOR Mobile Training Team from Austria concluded. The most recent course lasted 10 days, and was the last of three courses of this type run since April. The subject of the course was training the Armed Forces of Bosnia and Herzegovina (AFBiH) troops how to use mountain rescue techniques to rescue people in Disaster Relief scenarios.

Preparing for the worst

After the disastrous flooding of June 2014, AFBiH decided to ensure they continued to build upon their experiences supporting the civilian population. One area they highlighted was the capacity to rescue people from inaccessible areas such as flooded areas which this course addressed. During the course AFBiH personnel were trained to secure casualties in steep, hazardous environments and to maneuver them an area of safety. The course concluded with a practical examination of the skills to confirm the progress made.

Sharing Knowledge

COM EUFOR visited the course on Monday the 15th, and watched the AFBiH conducting some of the rescue techniques they been trained in. Speaking at the event, he said:

‘Sharing knowledge such as the mountain rescue techniques demonstrated here today is a key part of EUFOR’s mission. Through the progress the personnel have made on this course, they will be better prepared to meet the challenges of providing assistance to the population in crisis situations’.

Captain Markus Wallner, director of the course commented:

‘It was pleasing to see the skills gained over the duration of the training. Many of the AFBiH soldiers were using these techniques for the first time, but they were motivated and keen to learn. After this training they will be in a position to teach others, so this capability can be spread’

APRA-40 System Handling and Maintenance

On 4th June a Logistical System Handling and Systems Maintenance course concluded, delivered by a Romanian EUFOR Mobile Mentoring Team (MMT) at the Tactical Support Brigade Barracks in Rajlovac. The MMT consisted of 7 instructors led by Major Claudiu GHERMAN.

Training started with a description of the main components of the system, identifying the parts and how the APRA-40 system functioned. On conclusion of the theoretical stage, the practical work started, focusing on correct handling, function verifications and incident solving.

Major Gherman commented, “The Romanian team came here to share knowledge and practical experience and we salute the level of high professionalism of the BiH forces. Through very good communication and determination on both sides the established objectives were successfully achieved.”

By the end of the course, the Armed Forces BiH soldiers had gained the skills required to ensure future training on and maintenance of the equipment.

The EUFOR Capacity Building and Training Division in cooperation with BiH Operational Command provided the logistical support that made this training course possible.

EUFOR Disaster Relief Training Exercise turns real

From the 18th to the 29th of May, a MAHE (Military Assistance in Humanitarian Emergencies) Exercise was conducted in Derventa. The exercise came close to being a real situation as heavy rain raised the risk of flooding during the two weeks.

Civil and Military Organizations combine in Crisis Centre

Austrian and Slovenian personnel part of a EUFOR Mobile Monitoring Team trained engineers from Armed Forces Bosnia and Herzegovina, during an exercise simulating heavy rain and earthquakes in the area around the river Ukrina. As the exercise started, the military forces co-operated with the local Civil Protection Department, Fire Department, Police and the Red Cross to establish a Crisis Centre.

As the exercise continued, heavy rain started to threaten the area.

Heavy rain threatens real flooding

The civilian and military forces involved in the exercise prepared themselves to respond to a real flooding risk, bringing themselves to full readiness to support the local area. Fortunately, conditions improved and the river calmed, and the participants were able to finish the exercise without further incidents.

Arming with knowledge

EUFOR uses Mobile Training Teams such as the one used in this exercise to assist in developing the skills of the Armed Forces of Bosnia and Herzegovina, training them to respond to humanitarian emergencies such as flooding. EUFOR's contribution in this area is an essential element of its efforts within Bosnia and Herzegovina.

Crowd control and convoy training in Tuzla

From the 8th until the 12th of June in Tuzla, a platoon of Austrian soldiers from the EUFOR Multinational Battalion undertook combined convoy and crowd control training with the 4th Brigade Armed Forces of Bosnia and Herzegovina (AFBiH). The Peace Support Operation training focused on practical exercises, after the personnel were given the theoretical briefings on the topic beforehand.

International skills

Commander of the Multinational Battalion Michael Köck said, 'Topics like convoy and crowd control training are very valuable. This training has had reciprocal benefits for both the Multinational Battalion and the AFBiH'

CBTD teams meet to discuss achievements and goals

On 3rd of June 2015, the Capacity Building & Training Division (CBTD) Bi-Monthly Meeting took place in Camp Butmir.

This meeting occurs every two months, and is used to exchange information between the Capacity Building and Training teams in Camp Butmir and those working with Armed Forces Bosnia and Herzegovina (AFBiH).

Common Purpose

The meeting featured presentations from the teams on recent activities such as the mentoring of AFBiH in Disaster

Relief exercises, and gave guidance on improvements to the operation of CBTD. During the meeting Deputy Chief of Staff CBTD Colonel Hakan Soner Aplak praised the performance of his personnel, and emphasized the importance of the continued co-operation between the different teams.

Essential component of the mission

EUFOR's mandate is focused mainly on CBTD, through which it assists the AFBiH to develop its capacity and skills. Multinational teams use their knowledge to support the training of AFBiH in areas such as Medical Evacuation and Disaster Relief Support to Civil Authorities.

Turkish Mobile Training Team contribution recognized

On the 15th of June certificates of appreciation were presented to members of a Turkish Mobile Training Team who ran the CISCO Network Academy Course. 11 Armed Forces of Bosnia and Herzegovina (AFBiH) personnel were successfully trained on the last course that ended 12th June, one of 8 CIS (Communication and Information) courses being conducted this year by EUFOR. The certificates were presented on behalf of COM EUFOR by Colonel Jürgen Wimmer, Chief Joint Military Affairs.

Preparing for joint missions

CISCO Network Academy Course covers the fundamental network topics about routing. The aim of the course was to make AFBiH trainees gain theoretical information and practical experiences on routing. This information and experience gained through the training will help participants work as part of the networks built for joint missions.

Train the Trainer

Mobile Training Teams teams are provided by troop contributing nations for the time period of the training. Their task is to train future trainers of the AFBiH in order to assist the AFBiH to achieve a robust and self-sustainable training structure. The participants of this course are now ready to educate other personnel in this subject. During their first steps as new teachers, they will be mentored by EUFOR's Mobile Mentoring Teams.

LOT water project

Members of LOT house Zavidovici took part in implementation of a water supply renewal project in the Zivinice/Svojat local community. This project was financed by Turkish Government and completed in May.

The aim of the project was to provide a drinking water supply to 142 houses in the Svojat local community, which had great problems with water supply especially during the summertime.

The Senior National Representative of Turkish Contingent Col. Savaş CELEPOĞLU, Svojat LC president and Mayor of Zivinice municipality attended the opening ceremony of the Svojat water supply network. During the opening ceremony the Mayor of Zivinice Mr. Asim Aljic expressed his gratitude towards Turkish Government and emphasized that Turkey has implemented many infrastructure projects throughout the country. He also stated that Turkey was amongst the first countries that provided aid after the flood in May 2014.

Turkish LOT House donates medical equipment

On 14 May 2015 the Turkish contingent via its Liaison Observation Team (LOT) in Travnik donated new equipment to the maternity department of Travnik hospital. The equipment was given in a ceremony attended by local medical and government officials.

During their regular meetings with the local people in the hospital, the personnel of LOT Travnik had noticed that the hospital would benefit from more equipment for new born babies. Seeing the opportunity, a project was started resulting in the donation of the equipment.

The ceremony was attended by a number of area representatives, including the Cantonal Minister of Health and Social Policies, Nikola Grubisic, and the Senior National Representative of the Turkish EUFOR contingent, Colonel Savaş Celepoglu.

Speaking at the ceremony, the Director of Travnik Hospital Dr Mirsad Granov expressed his gratitude for the equipment, and spoke of the positive effect it would have for the local community.

Climbing camp educates children on Mine Risk Awareness

Around 20 children from BiH multiethnic schools – Zenica, Tuzla, Mostar and Sarajevo, participated in the Drežnica climbing camp from 29 June to 3 July. The camp was organized by the Austrian CIMIC team who provided donations and supported the event. “We initiated this project with the Colonel Michael Lasser from the EUFOR Embedded Advisory Team from Tuzla. We thought that climbing would be a perfect means to keep children of different ethnicities working together. From our perspective, it works very well”, says the 1st Lieutenant Andreas Grassberger, Austrian CIMIC Chief.

EUFOR LOT Mine Risk Education

The Swiss LOT House from Mostar, together with the EUFOR EOD team organized a Mine Risk Education (MRE) lecture for participants of the camp in Drežnica. The children had an opportunity to see how much space is still contaminated with mines and the consequences of touching mines. EUFOR contributes to the BiH Mine Action Strategy by conducting Mine Risk Education.

“The aim of the MRE is to reduce the risk of landmines and unexploded ordnance for humans and to make BiH a safer and more secure place” says private Mario Petrillo from Swiss LOT house in Mostar who provided lecture for participants of the camp.

“That is why the LOT Houses are doing MRE for BiH schools with the aim to inform children about the mines and UXO’s danger. Thanks to the MRE, there were not as many incidents as before, and this is a big success for all of us.

We are happy to see that the children’s knowledge about the mine situation in this country is very good. However, some children still have to learn there is a threat, and how to deal with it”
